Emperor's Death. On the Probability that his Brother King Charles III. may ſucceed to Imperial Throne, without prejudice of his Title to the Crown of Spain. On the Intereſt of Britain, that none enjoy the Spaniſh Monarchy who form any Pretenſions to our Crown.

From Wednesday, April 18. to Saturday, April 21. 1711.

WE talk'd laſt time, Maſter, of the Diſorders that were like to befal Europe in caſe of the Emperor's Death. ...e has now happen'd: Pray give me an ...who has the Government of the Empire ...e Interregnum till another Emperor be

...he Elector Palatine and Elector of Saxo- ...ears of the Empire in that caſe, Roger: ...e in Suabia, Franconia, and the Courſe ...hine, i. e. of all that part of Germany ...Heads of the Rhine and Danube to the ...ds, comprehending all that holds of the ...Italy and Savoy: And the latter not only ...Provinces where the Saxon Law obtains, ...ver all the other which lie in the Circles ...and Lower Saxony. And they have the ...r with the Emperor, except the Inveſti- ...incipalitys, and that what they do in ...ime muſt be confirm'd by the ſucceeding ... as the Brandenburg Reſident informs us, ...orical Diſcourſe of the Election of an

...r. 'Tis well the Adminiſtration falls in- ...ds of two Princes, Maſter, who are ſo ...d to the Common Cauſe. I hope they ...no difficulty to renew Prince Eugene's ..., to act jointly in the Netherlands ...uke of Marlborough againſt France, and ...ar vigorouſly on that ſide, to prevent ...King's embroiling the Empire in this ...njuncture.

...ope ſo too, Roger; and that ſince the ...latine has the Adminiſtration on the ... Electoral Highneſs will take care that ...e manag'd on that ſide with more Vi ...hitherto; his own particular Intereſt, ...hat of the Empire, being ſo much con- ... And ſince King Auguſtus is Vicar on ...hich lies next to Poland and the Swediſh ..., to be ſure he will take all poſſible care ...the Peace of the Empire in thoſe parts ... Swedes in Pomerania; for that Country ...his Province. And there's no reaſon to ...he King of Pruſſia, whoſe Father had ...ons to that now call'd Swediſh Pome- ...unwillingly parted with it for a ſort of ... will be ready to aſſert his Right, if the ...e him any handle, by diſturbing the ...e Empire.

... But the War of the Turks and Tar- ...to oblige King Auguſtus to return to Po ...er; ſo that he can't attend the Affairs ...re either as Vicar or Elector.

... is oblig'd by Oath and the Duty of ... to attend the Affairs of the Empire in ...by Deputy, Roger; and will certainly ...part which he thinks moſt proper. In ...ture, he has a very good and powerful ...ar, who with the Crown-General, &c. will take care of the Affairs of Poland till he himſelf can be there in Perſon. And ſince the King of Sweden muſt needs be ſenſible that he has three ſuch potent Enemies to deal with on the ſide of the Empire, as the Kings of Denmark, Pruſſia, and King Auguſtus, who are capable of ſwallowing up all his Dominions in the North of Germany, if he offer any Hoſtilitys to the Empire; we have reaſon to conclude that he will acquieſce in the late Treaty of Neutrality, except he be infatuated.

Countrym. Pray, Maſter, how do you think it will go as to the Election of an Emperor?

Obſ. We can only talk of thoſe things by way of Conjecture, Roger: That matter lies wholly in the breaſt of the Electors, who are reduc'd at preſent to the old Number of ſeven; for the Electors of Bavaria and Cologne being proſcrib'd, they have loſt their Votes, ſo that they can neither be at the Election in Perſon or by Deputys. And for the ſeven in being, we have reaſon to think that the Majority, which carries it, will be for K. Charles of Spain, the only Male of the Houſe of Auſtria. For, 1. The Elector of Ments, who is High Chancellor of the Empire, and the ſecond Perſon in Dignity when there's no King of the Romans, preſides at the Election, and collects the Suffrages, is in the Intereſt of the Houſe of Auſtria; he himſelf and his Brother Count Schonborn, Vice-Chancellor of the Empire, as I take it, being advanc'd by 'em. 'Tis his part to ſummon the Electors to appear in Perſon or by Deputies at Frankfort on the Main, to chuſe a new Emperor; wherein to be ſure he will loſe no time, in ſuch a dangerous Juncture. 2. The Elector Palatine, who is Vicar of the Empire on the Rhine, &c. and by conſequence has a great influence, is Uncle to K. Charles, by his Mother Empreſs Dowager to Leopold, and intirely in his Intereſt. 3. The Elector of Treves is a Son of the Houſe of Lorain, and a Grandſon of the Houſe of Auſtria by his Mother, who was Aunt to K. Charles, and therefore certainly in the Intereſt of his Family, who gave Sanctuary to that Great Prince his Father, when deſpoil'd of his Dominions by the Treachery of Lewis XIV. and had a chief hand in the Reſtitution of his Brother the preſent Duke of Lorain; ſo that he is oblig'd by all the Ties of Blood and Gratitude to be for the Houſe of Auſtria. 4. K. Charles himſelf, as King of Bohemia, is the chief of the Secular Electors, and has the firſt Vote next to thoſe of Ments and Treves. So that here's four of ſeven; a Majority that may, in all probability, be rely'd upon. Then, 5. K. Auguſtus, the Vicar of the other part of the Empire as Elector of Saxony, did in a great meaſure owe his obtaining the Poliſh Throne to the Houſe of Auſtria; and being likewiſe deſcended from them by Marriage, there's no great reaſon to doubt of his Vote. 6. The King of Pruſſia is deſcended from the Houſe of Auſtria in the ſame manner, and owes his Regal Dignity to that Family; ſo that there's ground to think think they will have his Vote. 7. Every one knows the Elector of Hanover was advanc'd to that Dignity by the House of Austria, not without great opposition by those who prefer'd their particular Views to the common Good of Europe, and the Merit of that Great and Illustrious Family; which being likewise descended by Marriage from the House of Austria, and newly ally'd to them by the present Empress Dowager Willhelmina Amalia, Daughter to John Frederick late Duke of Hanover, it may be presum'd they will also have his Vote.

Countrym. I think these Reasons are very strong, Master, to make it probable at least that K. Charles will be chosen Emperor.

Obs. There are others to be added, Roger; as, 1. That he is by much the greatest Prince of the Empire, and is most capable of defending it in case of a War with the Turks, Italians, or Poles; for his Hereditary Dominions reach from Switzerland to the Confines of Turky one way, and from the Frontiers of Saxony to the Gulph of Venice the other; a vast Tract of Ground, being about 380 Miles from South to North, and 580 from East to West, and almost all contiguous. 2. The Family is now the most illustrious in the World, there having been no less than 19 Emperors, 46 Kings, 31 Electors and Electresses, and 190 Dukes, Dutchesses, Princes, Princesses, Counts and Countesses descended from the Emperor Rodolph of that House, according to a Tree of it in the Atlas Historique; and among others our Queen by the Families of Denmark and France; the Kings of France, Portugal, Sweden, Denmark, Prussia, Poland; the Electors Palatine, Bavaria, and Cologne; the Dukes of Savoy, Lorain, and Florence; the Landgraves of Hesse; the Dukes of Courland and Parma, and the Princes of Baden; besides others too long to enumerate. So that as there is no Family in the known World to vye with it for Lustre, there's none exceeds it in Antiquity, but that of our most gracious Sovereign, which carries it from all the Families on Earth, as appears by our Histories. 3. The Family of Austria has been chosen to the Empire, either in a direct or collateral Line, since the year 1438. that Albert the Magnanimous of Austria succeeded his Father-in-law the Emperor Sigismund, which is about 273 years: So that there's no probability any other Family can succeed with so little Opposition, and that's so well able to sustain the Burden. 'Tis not very like that any of the present Electors will set up as Candidates for the Reasons above-mention'd, and to be sure they will never submit to a Family of less Dignity than their own.

Countrym. But what do you think will become of the Spanish Succession, Master? I hear some People object against K. Charles's being both Emperor and King of Spain, because they say 'twill make the Family too great, and may perhaps revive their Design for the Universal Monarchy; therefore they talk of making this Prince and t'other King of Spain.

Obs. For the Universal Monarchy, Roger, two of the greatest Princes that ever descended from the House of Austria, and were the most like to have obtain'd it, I mean the Emperor Charles V. and Philip II. of Spain, not only miscarry'd in the Design, but so weaken'd their Successors by it, that they have never since been capable of reattempting it, or any thing like it, except what was done by Ferdinand II. and III. who endeavour'd to be absolute in Germany, which ruin'd themselves, by bringing the Swedes and France into the Empire, and so impoverish'd their Successors, that they have had difficulty enough to [illegible] own Dignity ever since: And for the Branch, since Philip II. we all know how [illegible] ble they have been to think of it, [illegible] by Tempest, and the hands of the [illegible] Dutch, destroy'd their invincible [illegible] broke their Power in the Netherlands. [illegible] there's so little of the Spanish Monarchy [illegible] sess'd by K. Charles, and the Recovery of [illegible] like to prove so tedious and difficult, that [illegible] scarce worth any body's while to be his [illegible] Majesty's Rival for that Crown. But [illegible] quietly possess'd of the whole, as he certain[illegible] the best Title to it, the House of Austria [illegible] least capable of doing any hurt to their [illegible] bours, or to the Ballance of Europe with it. [illegible] is evident, Roger, because the other part of [illegible] Dominions lie so remote from it, and they [illegible] Competency of Naval Force to transport [illegible] from the one part to the other; nor [illegible] march them to the Places of Embarkment, [illegible] leave from other Princes and States. To [illegible] may add; 1. That if God bless K. Charles [illegible] more Sons than one, the Austrian Eagle [illegible] again into two as formerly, and then the [illegible] of their Exorbitant Power is over, before [illegible] the Eagles can recover the Feathers they [illegible] by molting so long. 2. That the setting up [illegible] Pretender to Spain, except with Consent of [illegible] Charles and his Party, may not only lose [illegible] federates all the footing they have there, [illegible] danger the whole Alliance, and expose all [illegible] to a greater Danger of being over-run [illegible] House of Bourbon than ever. 3. 'Twere [illegible] time enough to talk of disposing the Spanish [illegible] narchy, when 'tis recover'd from the [illegible] therwise it looks like sharing the Bear's skin [illegible] fore he be caught. 4. As King Charles must [illegible] ly owe that Monarchy, when recovered, to [illegible] Assistance of his Allies, he is most likely to [illegible] them grateful Returns, and his Possession [illegible] Imperial Throne will enable him to do it [illegible] than any other Prince that can be set up [illegible] room. 5. As to the Objection, that [illegible] Spain and the Empire will make him too [illegible] 'tis easily answer'd: His Predecessor [illegible] was chosen Emperor when King of Spain, [illegible] tually residing in that Country, which [illegible] more powerful by far than now; besides, [illegible] the wisest, bravest, richest, and the most [illegible] Prince of his time, in full possession of [illegible] nions of the House of Burgundy, and the [illegible] Netherlands; yet with all these Advantages [illegible] no Emperor or King of Spain can ever [illegible] gain, he was not able to carry the Universal [illegible] narchy: So that the Objection from [illegible] gainst the present King Charles's enjoying [illegible] Crowns, has nothing in it, were he capable [illegible] so ungrateful to his Allies as to think of a [illegible] versal Monarchy, which nothing but Folly [illegible] suggest.

I shall conclude at present, Roger, with [illegible] you, that I make no doubt but her Majesty [illegible] Great Britain, and her Allies, will have a [illegible] watchful Eye to prevent the Enjoyment of [illegible] Crown of Spain by any Prince, who by [illegible] selves, or their Posterity, form the least [illegible] sion to our Crown, contrary to the Succession [illegible] establish'd in the Protestant Line of Hanover [illegible] we have been at too much Expence of Blood [illegible] Treasure to secure our own Liberties and [illegible] and the Freedom of Europe, to neglect [illegible] of such a false step as that.

They add, that the Court of France imagine the Allies will content themſelves with acting defenſively in Flanders this Summer, at leaſt that they will not find themſelves able to undertake ſuch a Siege as that of Arras, which Place has been made very ſtrong this Winter by new Works, and is provided with a numerous Garriſon.

London, April 19.

Yeſterday Advice came by an Expreſs of the Death of the Emperour. His Diſtemper had gone on in the Ordinary Courſe, and the Medicines given him had their proper Effect to the Sixth Day of his Illneſs being April 16 N.S; ſo that he was look'd upon to be in a very fair Way of Recovery; and therefore Prince Eugene took Leave of him, and ſet out from Vienna that Morning for the Netherlands: But the 17th about 4 in the Morning a violent Fever ſiez'd his Imperial Majeſty, which ſoon made him dilirious, and brought on Convulſions, ſo that at Noon he expired. News of which overtaking Prince Eugene, he turn'd back to Vienna.

The ſame Expreſs has brought an Account, that the Duke of Marlborough receiv'd Letters at Ghent on Saturday laſt by an extraordinary Courier, importing, that Prince Eugene had been two Days upon the Road to the Netherlands, when the News of the Emperour's Death overtaking him oblig'd him to go back to Vienna. On Sunday in the Afternoon his Grace arriv'd at Tournay, accompanied by the Prince of Anhalt, the Field-Deputies of the States, and Sir Richard Temple. The Army under his Grace's Command, is form'd of 218 Battallions and 250 Squadrons

The King William Pacquet-Boat, Captain Hooper Commander, ſail'd from Falmouth the 25th of March, having on Board the Mails for Liſbon of the 13th and 20th of that Month; but falling in with two French Privateers the 26th, the Captain, after Six Hours hard Chace, was forced to ſtrike; having firſt thrown his Guns overboard, ſtav'd his Water- and Beer-Cask, and ſunk the Mails. The Enemy carry'd him into Morlaix.

Falmouth, April 14. Yeſterday paſs'd by to the Weſtward the Men of War and Tranſports that were at Plymouth, as is ſuppos'd. The Day before Yeſterday off of the Lizard was taken the Sarah of Boſton Captain Randall from that Place bound for London, by a ſmall Privateer: The Men made their Eſcape in their Boat. This Day we have an Account of the Expedition's Arrival at Mount's-Bay.

tries have been regarded as the greateſt Ornaments of the Fair Sex, are conſidered as the Ingredients of narrow Converſation, and Family Behaviour.

Some Years ago, I was at the Tragedy of Macbeth, and unfortunately placed my ſelf under a Woman of Quality that is ſince Dead; who, as I found by the Noiſe ſhe made, was newly returned from France. A little before the riſing of the Curtain, ſhe broke out into a loud Soliloquy, When will the dear Witches enter; and immediately upon their firſt Appearance, asked a Lady that ſat three Boxes from her, on her Right Hand, if thoſe Witches were not charming Creatures. A little after, as Betterton was in one of the fineſt Speeches of the Play, ſhe ſhook her Fan at another Lady, who ſat as far on the left Hand, and told her with a Whiſper, that might be heard all over the Pit, We muſt not expect to ſee Balloon to Night. Not long after, calling out to a young Baronet by his Name, who ſat three Seats before me, ſhe asked him whether Macbeth's Wife was ſtill alive; and before he could give an Anſwer) fell a talking of the Ghoſt of Banquo. She had by this time formed a little Audience to her ſelf, and fixed the Attention of all about her. But as I had a mind to hear the Play, I got out of the Sphere of her Impertinence, and planted my ſelf in one of the remoteſt Corners of the Pit.

This pretty Childiſhneſs of Behaviour is one of the moſt refined Parts of Coquetry, and is not to be attained in Perfection, by Ladies that do not Travel for their Improvement. A natural and unconſtrained Behaviour has ſomething in it ſo agreeable, that it is no wonder to ſee People endeavouring after it. But at the ſame time, it is ſo very hard to hit, when it is not Born with us, that People often make themſelves Ridiculous in attempting it.

A very Ingenious French Author tells us, that the Ladies of the Court of France, in his Time, thought it ill Breeding, and a kind of Female Pedantry, to pronounce an hard Word right; for which Reaſon they took frequent occaſion to uſe hard Words, that they might ſhew a Politeneſs in murdering them. He further adds, that a Lady of ſome Quality at Court, having accidentally made uſe of an hard Word in a proper Place, and Pronounced it right, the whole Aſſembly was out of Countenance for her.

I muſt however be ſo juſt to own, that there are many Ladies who have Travell'd ſeveral thouſands of Miles without being the worſe for it, and have brought Home with them all the Modeſty, Diſcretion and good Senſe, that they went abroad with. As on the contrary, there are great Numbers of Travell'd Ladies, that have lived all their Days within the Smoak of London. I have known a Woman that never was out of the Pariſh of St. James's, with as many Foreign Fopperies in her Carriage, as ſhe could have Gleaned up in half the Countries of Europe.
